INDIGENOUS WOMEN AND GIRLS MISSING PERSONS
TOOLKIT AND RESOURCE GUIDE

"The Daisy"

Simple, yet Elegant, Beautiful, Dynamic

"Reaching for the Light"

Aspiring actresses, writers, artists, teachers, ballerinas & leaders

Remembering our sisters, our daughters, our nieces

our granddaughters, our aunties, our mothers

Missing.. Lost on the Highway of Life and as each petal falls so does our tears

Leaving behind only

Broken Hearts and memories of days past

A white butterfly emerges from the petals dropped

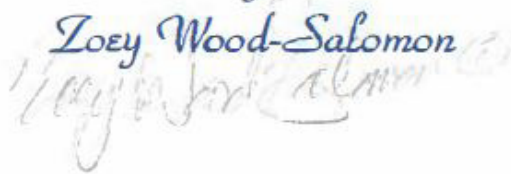

She brushes our face and takes away our tears

So small, so fragile yet so strong

Forever in our Hearts

Introduction

The Greater Sudbury Police Service (GSPS) understands that being an Indigenous woman today is a high risk classification of becoming a missing person due to systemic racism and intergenerational trauma. Further, we acknowledge that Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls (MMIWG) is not solely a national issue; but our community's priority. Sudbury is in the heart of Anishnawbek territory with many Indigenous peoples calling this community home. We have learned how racism and trauma can cause lifestyle, behaviour and circumstances that may subject the Aboriginal women of our community to becoming a lost person. In knowing and learning our shared histories of Indigenous populations and Canada, the impact of colonialism; and our relationship to both, the Greater Sudbury Police Service acknowledges Canada's history and continues to nurture our relationships with Indigenous community partners and members. The GSPS respects all cultures and promotes an inclusive and respectful community.

A teaching provided by Mishomis Jim Eshkawkogan advised that equity doesn't always mean that each child gets an evenly sliced piece of cake. Sometimes equity means to give the bigger piece to the child that is starving, for that is what's required to ensure that all of the children's stomachs are full. ³

Utilizing Jim Eshkawkogan's teaching about equity, we are offering this toolkit in the hopes of assisting Indigenous families who may require help. By building this toolkit to better navigate the missing person investigation and resources available, our goal is to ensure the safety and wellbeing of Indigenous peoples in our community.

"While Indigenous children were being mistreated in residential schools by being told they were heathens, savages, pagans and inferior people – that same message was being delivered in the public schools of this country." - Justice Murray Sinclair, TRC Chairperson.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada: Calls to Action

In 2015, the “Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada – Calls for Action” was released. This document presented 94 recommendations; all of which are supported by the “Looking Ahead to Build the Spirit of Our Women – Learning to Live Free From Violence” Strategy.

Two of the recommendations include:

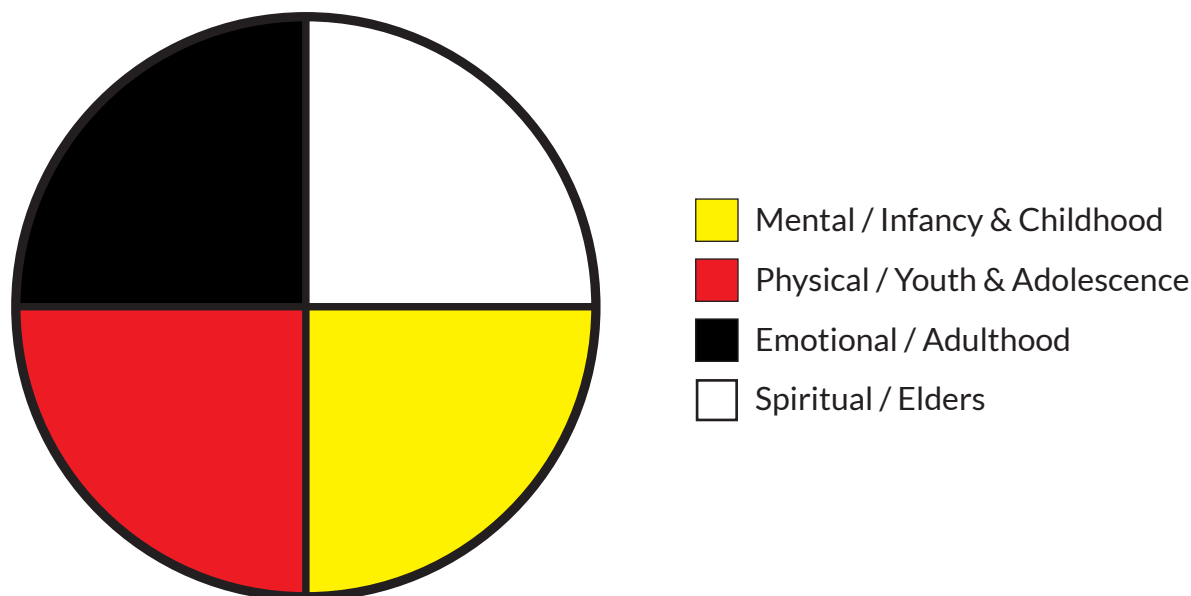

40. We call on all levels of government, in collaboration with Aboriginal people, to create adequately funded and accessible Aboriginal-specific victim programs and services with appropriate evaluation mechanisms.

41. We call upon the federal government, in consultation with Aboriginal organizations, to appoint a public inquiry into the causes of, and remedies for, the disproportionate victimization of Aboriginal women and girls. The inquiry’s mandate would include:

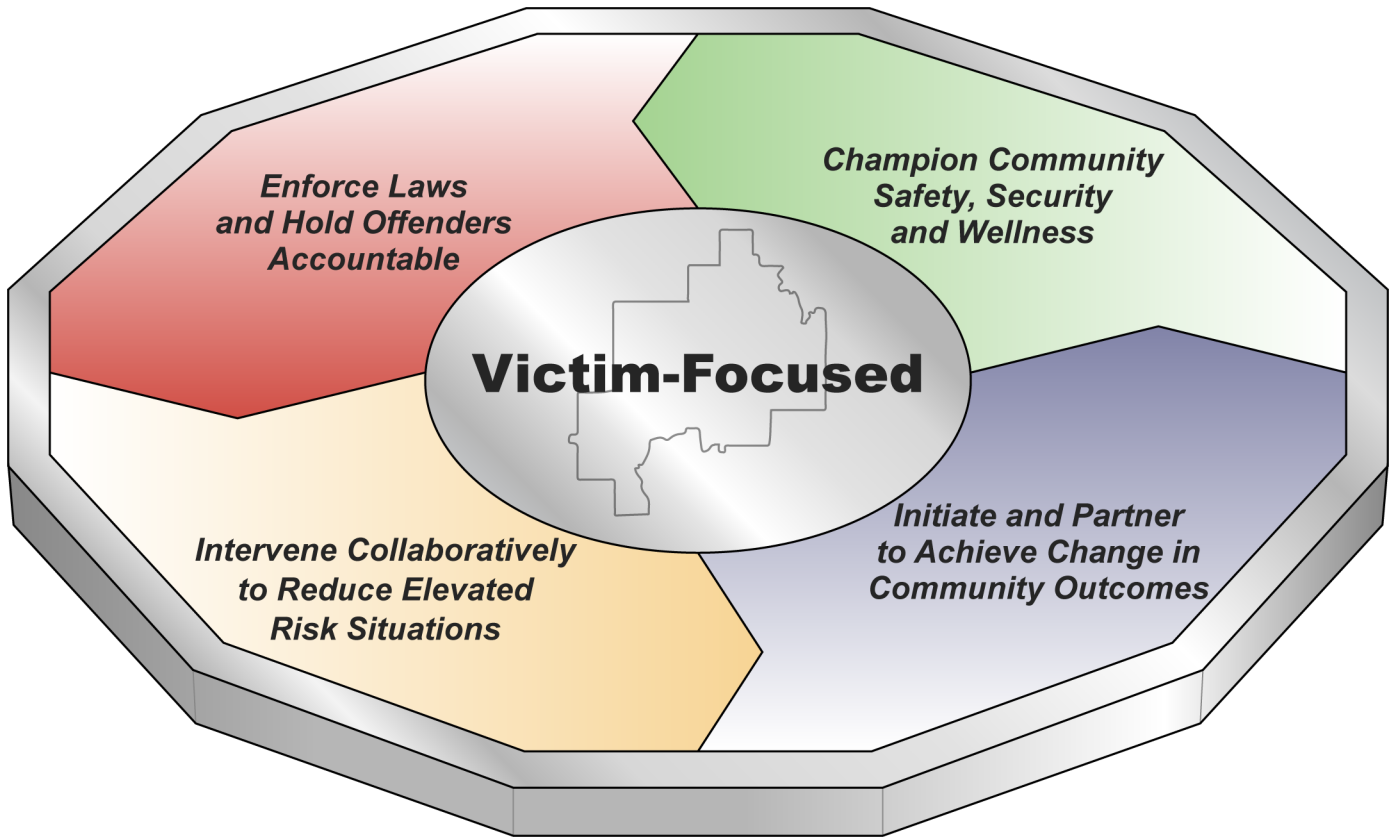

- i. Investigation into missing and murdered Aboriginal women and girls.
- ii. Links to the intergenerational legacy of residential schools.

The Greater Sudbury Police Service hears this call and is taking action to build our awareness on MMIWG issues and provide our assistance to families wherever possible.

As a Service, we also acknowledge the Medicine Wheel and how each of its four parts are connected to symbolize wholeness and wellbeing. This toolkit will refer to its teachings, where applicable:

The Greater Sudbury Police Service is devoted to “Our Shared Commitment” by Intervening Collaboratively to Reduce Elevated Risk Situations as indicated in “Our Shared Commitment to Community Safety and Wellbeing Model.”

This toolkit is meant to provide families with information and resources to assist them during the time their loved one is missing.

It is also intended to provide police investigators with timely information to ensure essential steps in locating your loved one are undertaken.

Greater Sudbury Police Service Voluntary Indigenous Identification Form

Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women, Girls, Transgender, and Two Spirit peoples has only recently come to the forefront of the news and online media. We are learning about how we can make changes in our systems so that these disproportionate statistics do not continue. We are learning how these systems were built without consideration for the wellbeing of the Indigenous community, for holistic living or for the land. The Greater Sudbury Police Service has a Missing Person Investigator and a Missing Person Coordinator whose mandate is to investigate and locate persons reported as missing to ensure their safety and well-being and to work with families to ensure the safe return of their loved one.

1. Fill out the Voluntary Indigenous Identification Form (Family or Friend may fill out on behalf of the Missing Person). Note - This form is voluntary. You do not have to fill out this form. The Missing Person investigation will proceed with or without this toolkit. This toolkit is an option for persons identifying as Indigenous and is a means to provide families with valuable information.

2. See Appendix F2 - Fill out GSPS Lost Person Questionnaire

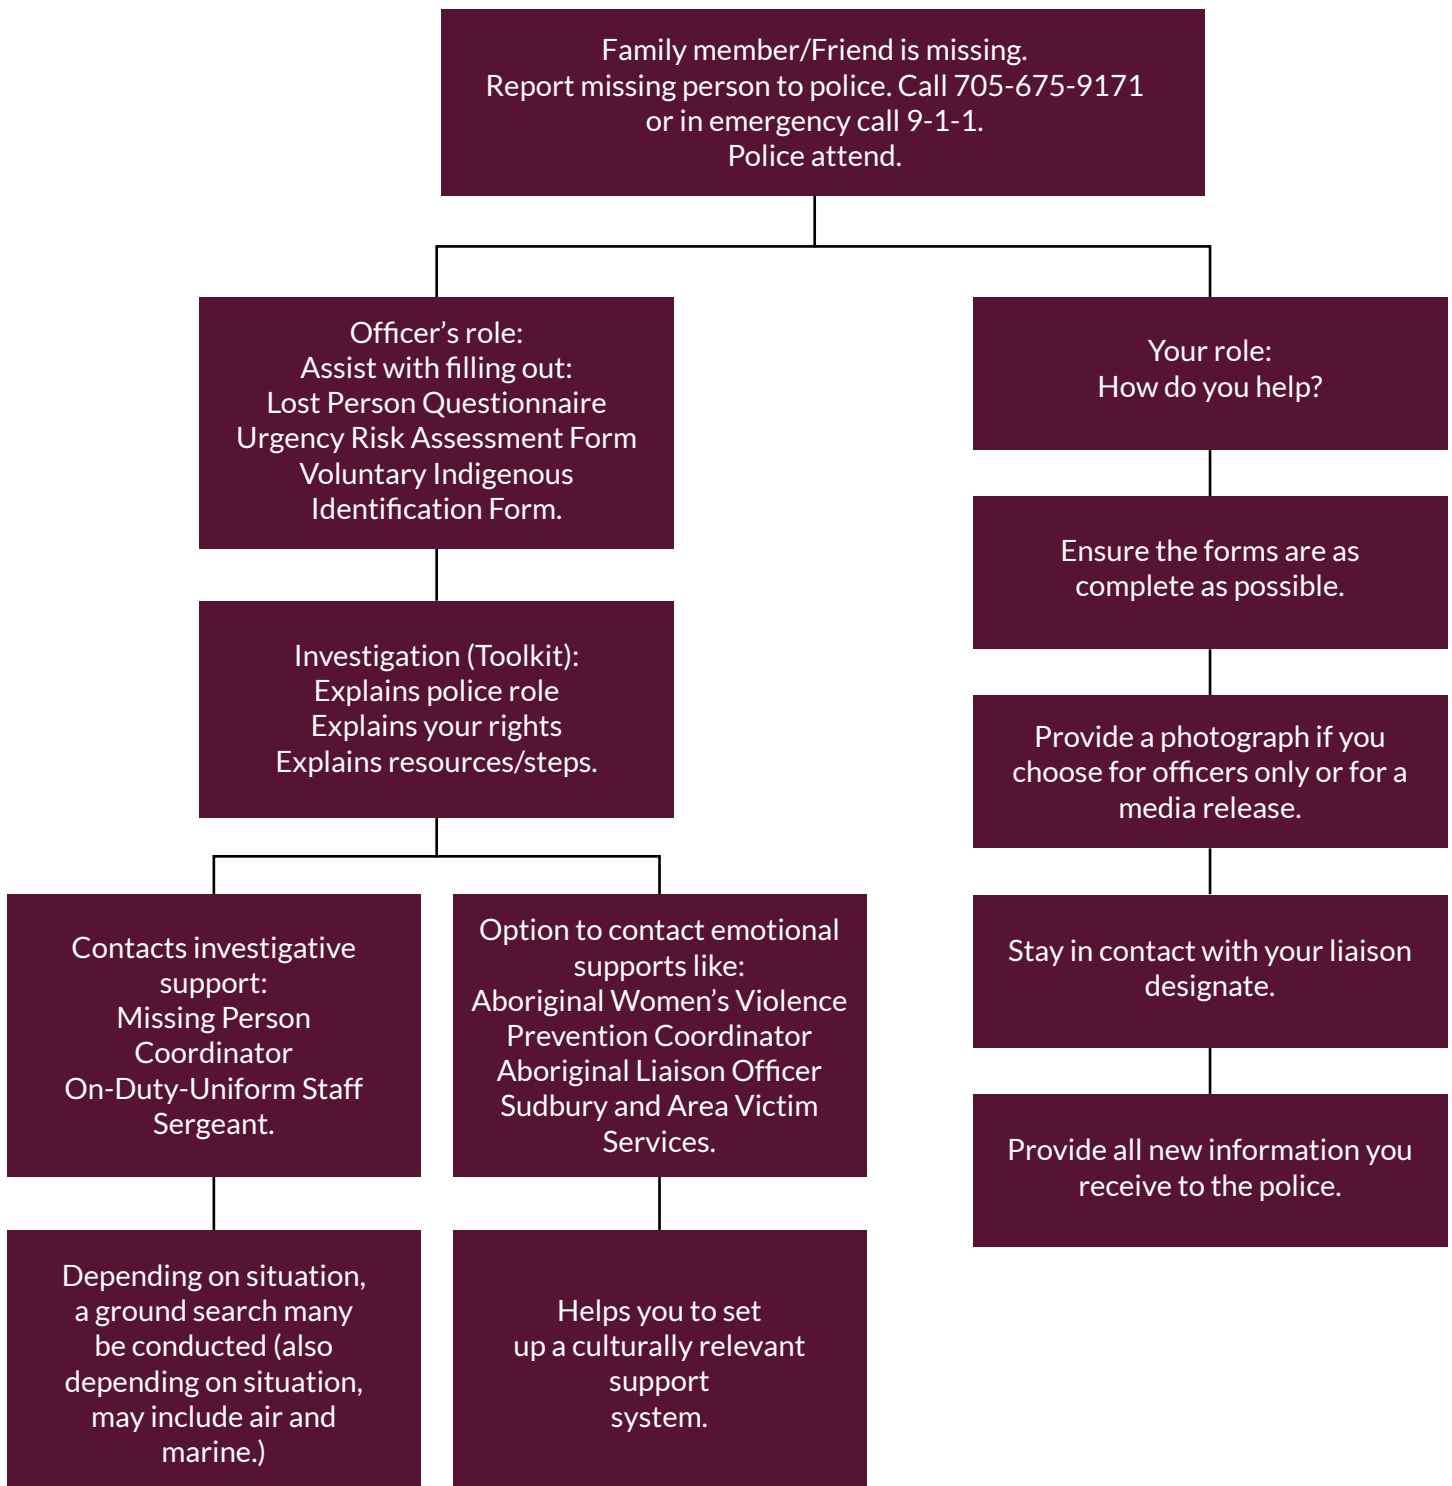

Include information for First Nation, Métis, Inuit or other Indigenous identity on this form.

Please write information as to connection with Indigenous Relationship

Navigating the Missing Person Investigation

There is no 24-hour waiting period to report a person missing.

Key Information from Greater Sudbury Police Service

The Greater Sudbury Police Service has a Missing Person Investigator and a Missing Person Coordinator whose mandates are to investigate and locate persons reported as missing to ensure their safety and well-being. This results in approximately 1,000 reports each year. The majority of missing persons involve youths and habitual runaways (under the age of 18) who are usually located within a short time period. Some investigations, however, may go on for months or even years.

Most of the persons reported missing in Sudbury are less than 18 years of age. Unfortunately, children that run away expose themselves to a variety of risks which may include being exploited by others.

“The very prospect of having a missing loved one is something we hope you and your family never have to experience. We can only imagine what parents, grandparents, other relatives and friends must feel when they realize someone close to them is missing. We have heard that this process can be very isolating and emotionally overwhelming,” - Native Women’s Association of Canada (NWAC).

These words from NWAC reflect our thoughts at the Greater Sudbury Police Service.

Missing Persons cases include:

- Runaway youth
- Voluntarily missing adults
- Wanderers / Alzheimer’s patients
- Parental abductions where there is immediate danger to the child
- Non-family abductions
- Human Trafficking
- Unknown circumstances
- Unusual / suspicious circumstances

Reporting a Missing Person

If there is some indication of foul play (suspicious or criminal activity), call 9-1-1 immediately. If foul play is not suspected, call 705-675-9171. Anyone can file a missing person report; you do not need to be a relative. Note: There is no 24-hour waiting period to report a person as missing.

Missing Children (under 18 years of age)

- Information about the child's school, teachers and whether or not the school was contacted and checked.
- A current photo of the missing child. This may be used by police when issuing a media release and helps officers identify the missing child.
- A description of the child, including date of birth, age, physical descriptors and clothing worn when last seen.
- The time and place where the missing child was last seen and by whom.
- The names, addresses and phone numbers of friends and whether or not they have been checked prior to reporting the child missing.
- A list of possible hangouts or locations that the child may have gone and whether or not these locations have been checked.
- If the missing child requires any medications.

Missing Adults (18 years and older)

- A current photo of the missing person. This may be used by police when issuing a media release and helps officers identify the missing person.
- A description of the person including date of birth, age, physical descriptors and clothing worn when last seen.
- The time and place where the missing person was last seen and by whom.
- The names, addresses and phone numbers of friends and whether or not they have been checked prior to reporting the person missing.
- If the missing person requires any medications.
- Ensure the missing person is not at work prior to contacting police.

It is important for all people involved (family members, friends) in the search for missing persons to remember that it's not about who finds the person first; it is about working together to locate the person. As a Police Service, we realize the existence of a fractured relationship with Canada and Indigenous peoples, however, we are here to help, serve, protect and support where we can. Do not be afraid to ask the police questions. Be aware that the police will sometimes only give you information that they are legally allowed to. There may be privacy rights that other people have that the police must abide by.

The officer is going to ask a lot of questions. Remember that the more information the police have for their investigations, the better! Please be patient with the questioning - a piece of information you might deem as not useful may be a key piece later on in the investigation.

Remember to share any uncharacteristic behaviours that your loved one may have displayed lately, or any occurrence like a relationship breakdown or mental health/mood changes.

Media Relations & Amber Alert Guidelines

Media Relations

The media is a useful tool in communicating information to a large audience quickly and can be utilized to assist in the investigation.

Media, including social media, can play an important role in a missing person investigation. Police may utilize the media to locate your loved one, generate tips and engage witnesses or persons of interest.

Remember that the GSPS has trained media personnel who prepare media releases. It is always up to the family if they want their loved one's image released or details about the person released.

When a loved one has gone missing and it has become public knowledge, several media outlets may attempt to contact you for more information. Please know that you have the right to participate or decline to participate in an interview. If it is not a good time for you, say so. Do not feel pressured to engage with the media.

If you do feel prepared to answer media questions, remember you also have the right to start or end any interview at any time.

It is important to know that whatever information you choose to release to the media will be out forever. You cannot control the media once information has been released.

In the case of a missing child, it is also important for both of the parents/guardians to be united on what they will tell the media. Regardless of the family dynamic, showing a unified front to the media will serve to benefit the child and the investigation. It is recommended for parents to get together and discuss what they will share with the media ahead of time.

The media may ask you a variety of questions. It is important that you share this information with your police investigators first, even if it seems insignificant. This may prevent your loved one's investigation from being tainted or damaged because of information you put out to the public. Remember, information is power.

See Appendix F8 for a sample of our Missing Person media release.

Amber Alert

An Amber Alert is a province wide early warning system that quickly alerts the public of an abducted child who is in danger and may serve to assist in locating the child's abductor.

The Ontario Amber Alert guidelines are:

1. The law enforcement agency believes a child under 18 years of age has been abducted; and
2. The law enforcement agency believes the child is in danger; and
3. There is enough descriptive information about one or more of the following: the child, the abductor, and/or the vehicle, which is sufficient to allow the law enforcement agency to believe that an immediate broadcast alert will help in locating the child.

See Appendix F7 for Amber Alert Form

Social Media Tips

- If you require assistance in setting up a social media account (such as Facebook or Twitter), please do not hesitate to ask a friend, family member or a police liaison.
- Social media can be a useful tool in communicating information quickly. Please remember that people online may make judgments before knowing all of the information. There may be some very negative people posting messages that may not be accurate. Police cannot arrest someone for their opinion unless what they are expressing is criminal in nature. Often, Internet “trolls” look to get a rise out of people and have little consideration for people’s feelings. They may not even be living in the area and are just following along on trending news stories.
- You may choose to respond to trolls, but always take the time to think about your response. Try not to post anything out of anger. Think about what you want to respond and wait until the next day as you may feel differently.
- You can even have someone that you trust to read through the social media posts for you if you are struggling with the postings.
- You know the truth. It’s important to remember who your loved ones are that are supporting you.
- It is also vital to let police know of any tips or other information coming forth. If a Facebook account has been created relating to a person who has gone missing, police will monitor it. Call your police liaison if you feel something should be dealt with in a timely fashion. It is also important to provide the designated police contact directly with any tips or information you receive so that nothing is missed in the investigation. You never know which piece of information could be groundbreaking for an investigation.
- Learn to take ‘screenshots’. It may come in handy quickly. Someone could post something and then quickly take it down. It is important to document a possible tip with a quick screenshot and provide this to the police as soon as possible.

Self Care

Dealing with a missing person situation is highly emotional and distressing for all involved. It is not a usual occurrence to have a family member go missing. To ensure your wellbeing during this time, it is essential to take care of yourself. Without self-care, stress can bring on a host of health problems. It is absolutely essential for you to nurture your mind, body, heart and spirit. In keeping with guidance through the medicine wheel, a number of ideas are shared to assist. In no way are these inclusive and may not necessarily fit with your lifestyle. Rather, these are suggestions for your consideration.

History

In 2014, a joint working committee was formed consisting of members of the N'Swakamok Native Friendship Centre and the Greater Sudbury Police Service under the direction and support of Executive Director Marie Meawasige and Chief Paul Pedersen. The purpose of the committee was to develop community based strategies to help address and bring awareness to "Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls", a strategy that has brought Ontario and Indigenous communities together to end the cycle of violence and ensure future generations of Indigenous women can live the way they deserve — with safety and respect. In Sudbury, although there have not been any unsolved cases of MMIWG, we are working together to prevent such incidents. To assist with their work, the committee wrote a proposal for funding through the Federal Government's Justice Canada Fund that would provide for the recruitment of a paid coordinator for a two year period. This has now been extended three more years.

About the Project

In March 2016, the Department of Justice Canada announced funding for Sudbury's "Looking Ahead to Build the Spirit of Our Women – Learning to Live Free From Violence" project. Sudbury Police and N'Swakamok are now working proactively to address violence against women and to develop strategies to address the issue.

The Aboriginal Women Violence Prevention Coordinator (AWVPC) is responsible for implementing community based strategies through looking at the prevention and the education of historical and current violence that affects Aboriginal women and girls today.

The work of the AWVPC will also aim at developing a proactive approach to help prevent Aboriginal female youth from entering high risk situations and to improve the Greater Sudbury Police Service's response to such incidents.

Outreach and Education For At-Risk Aboriginal Women and Girls

- Programs and presentations aimed at creating community awareness about violence against Aboriginal women.
- Resource materials and education regarding the criminal justice system for victims.
- Teachings to service providers regarding culturally sensitive approaches to assisting Aboriginal survivors of abuse.
- Collaborate through outreach partnerships and approaches to improve access to justice and participation of women and girls in the justice system.

Services and Supports

- Advocacy and guidance for survivors of abuse engaging with the criminal justice system—safety planning
- Holistic approaches and healing services such as sharing circles and referrals to Elders.

Vulnerable Persons Registry

The Vulnerable Persons Registry will be available to Aboriginal women and girls who wish to register themselves. This information is put into a database and will assist Police in locating them if they go missing.

Appendix C - Financial Support Option

Financial Support Option

Did you know that there is a grant called the “Federal Income Support for Parents of Murdered or Missing Children”? The Federal Income Support for Parents of Murdered or Missing Children (PMMC) grant is an income support grant available to applicants who have suffered a loss of income from taking time away from work to cope with the death or disappearance of their child or children as a result of a probable Criminal Code offence.

Greater Sudbury Police Service
Indigenous Missing Person Urgency Risk Assessment Form

Please read: In no way does the Greater Sudbury Police Service hold a presumption that being an Indigenous person will assume that your loved one will adopt the following systemic factors, however; through our knowledge gathering, we are learning that some high risk life factors are the outcomes of a system that has failed Indigenous peoples for years. We continue to strive to offer our service to the community in a respectful way and are trying to identify possible high risk factors that may help the investigation.

High risk systemic factors of violence:

Limited resources (i.e. residence, cellphone) ----- ☐

Child/Youth will talk to anyone ----- ☐

Persons living with shared custody ----- ☐

Poor school attendance ----- ☐

Person's First Nation is not near where the person has been living ----- ☐

Residential school survivor or descendant ----- ☐

Involvement with persons with unhealthy lifestyle choices ----- ☐

Person lives with identified or suspected Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder effects ----- ☐

Appendix F3 - General Characteristics of Lost Persons

The following are commonly used general categories of lost persons. Pertinent characteristics set each category apart. Although each of the groups exhibit specific traits, there are always exceptions and good search strategy concentrates on the most likely.

Children (1 - 3 years):

- Unaware of the concept of being lost.
- Navigational skills and sense of direction are practically nonexistent.
- They tend to wander aimlessly with no specific objective.
- They might seek out the most convenient location to lay down and go to sleep: Inside a log, under thick bush, under an overhanging rock, under a picnic table.

Children (3 - 6 years):

- These children are more mobile and capable of going further than those in the one to three year old category.
- They have a concept of being lost and will generally try to return home or go back to somewhere they are familiar with.
- They have definite interests and may be drawn away by animals, following older children or just exploring.
- When tired, they generally will try to find a sleeping spot.
- Many have been instructed to stay away from strangers and as a result will not answer or talk to searchers when called by name.

Children (6 to 12 years):

- Their navigational and direction skills are much more developed.
- They are generally oriented to their normal familiar surroundings and become confused in a strange environment.
- They may intentionally run away to avoid punishment, gain attention, or sulk.
- Whether it is intentional or accidental circumstances, they often will not answer when called.
- Darkness usually brings on a willingness to accept help and be found.
- Children this age suffer from the same fears and problems that adults would, but with a greater sense of helplessness.
- The circumstances of loss often reflect their being transplanted into a foreign environment or surroundings by parents or other adults.

Elderly (above 65 years):

- The individual may be suffering from Alzheimer's disease.
- They may be easily distracted by something that fascinates them.
- They are generally oriented to past environments rather than to the present.
- The more active and lucid they are, the more likely they are to overextend and exhaust themselves rapidly, which can result in heart attack or other potentially fatal complications.
- They are often hard of hearing or deaf which present problems with detection.
- Usually go further than expected.

Mentally Ill (all ages):

- They generally will not respond to their spoken name.
- They most often will be hidden from view as a result of a fright or seeking shelter from the elements.
- Many times they will wait for days in the same location.
- They may not have physical impairments, however they might not know how to help themselves.

Individuals who are withdrawn:

- Most often they are seeking solitude.
- Generally they will not respond to searchers as they feel it is an intrusion on their solitude.
- They will generally be within sight and sound of civilization.
- They tend to be found near prominent locations: Lake or scenic hill, lookout or area with a view, seldom, if ever, found in the underbrush.

Hikers:

- Generally, they will rely on trails with a set destination in mind.
- Problems or complications usually arise with navigation when trail conditions change or become obscure:
 - Slide over trail
 - Trail not maintained
 - Trail covered intermittently with snow in the spring
 - Poorly defined junctions
- Often hiking parties are mismatched in abilities and one person falls behind, becomes disoriented and ultimately lost.
- Cutting switchbacks many times lead to disorientation or going down the wrong hill or drainage.
- They are very dependent on travel aids and trails for navigation.

Hunters:

- They tend to concentrate on game more than on navigation.
- In the excitement of pursuing game, they are often lead into deadfall areas, boulder fields, underbrush, and deep snow with little regard for exhaustion or navigation.
- They tend to overextend themselves into darkness and push beyond their physical abilities
- They are typically unprepared for extremely foul weather. (Heavy storms in the fall often signify the movement of animals and consequently an improvement in hunting).

Berry Pickers, Rockhounds, Photographers:

- Their intentions are to stay in one location.
- They usually carry no provisions or survival gear.
- They go in good weather and as a result do not wear anything but light clothing.
- Because their attention is focused on or near the ground, they are often misled by subtle terrain changes.
- Attempts to return to familiar ground only puts them further out of contact, because of their complete disorientation.
- These circumstances usually put them at a high risk for survival.

Fishermen:

- Generally, they are very well oriented because of the directional flow of a river or the position of a lake.
- The reason they are overdue is most often accident related, such as slipping into the water, falls over cliffs while trying to move up or down stream, or swept off of feet in fast moving water.
- A very high percentage of this mission category is boat related.
- Often this will be a recovery mission.

Climbers:

- The individuals in this category are generally well equipped and self sufficient.
- They tend to remain on or near designated routes.
- A primary factor for these incidents is weather or hazardous conditions which limit an individual's abilities.
- Other major factors are falling debris and avalanche.
- Technical expertise is generally needed for both search and recovery.

GUIDELINES FOR AN AMBER ALERT

- ☐ 1) The law enforcement agency believes a child under 18 years of age has been abducted; and
- ☐ 2) The law enforcement agency believes the child is in danger; and
- ☐ 3) There is enough descriptive information about one or more of the following: the child, the abductor, and/or the vehicle, which is sufficient to allow the law enforcement agency to believe that an immediate broadcast alert will help in locating the child.
