Crime Statistics Report Presentation

Chief Pedersen gave a presentation on current crime statistics in Sudbury. The last 5 years saw a slight increase in criminal offences, however the last two years have seen a decrease of 3.4 %. Crime prevention tactics used by the Service have led to better awareness in the community of crime patterns, which has led to increased reporting of crimes. Social and economic factors play a large role in criminal behaviour, such as substance use. Changes in how crimes are classified, particularly sexual assault-related charges have resulted in more reported crimes. Social media messaging helps to meet the community where they are to ensure that messages are being delivered to the community and helps celebrate successes in the community. Chief Pedersen emphasized the steps the community can take to proactively safeguard themselves, and ways they can connect with the police and report crimes before calling 9-1-1.

Balancing Competing Pressures Presentation

Chief Pedersen gave a presentation on calls for service in the community. Non-mental health related welfare checks and mental health calls for service have risen. Along with these calls, the Service's highest percentage of priority 1 and 2 calls are ambulance assists, meaning police are attending the call along with EMS staff. If an individual is detained under the Mental Health Act, police officers are the only authority legally allowed to apprehend a person. Police-hospital transition protocols have been updated to reduce wait times at Health Sciences North (HSN). The MCRRT service has also been implemented to help reduce police interaction and transition community members in crisis to other community service partners faster. However, it needs to be noted that many outside agencies request and expect a police response when there are unknown variables or the potential of violence when they are called for assistance. Along with the external pressures associated with these calls are the internal pressures with the well-being of the Service workforce. On any given day 11.7% of sworn members are non-deployable. There needs to be continued analysis of calls for service and conversations with other agencies to ensure sworn members are being deployed where they are most needed.

The Board thanked Chief Pedersen for the informative presentations.

Vice Chair Caldarelli Fran requested a presentation detailing how drug-impaired RIDE checks are conducted.
